

QUESTION 1 [1/1] In a regression model, the dependent variable is the variable being predicted, and the independent variable is the variable used to predict the dependent variable.

Answer: True. In a regression model, the dependent variable is the variable being predicted, and the independent variable is the variable used to predict the dependent variable.

QUESTION 2 [1/1] In a regression model, the dependent variable is the variable being predicted, and the independent variable is the variable used to predict the dependent variable.

Answer: True. In a regression model, the dependent variable is the variable being predicted, and the independent variable is the variable used to predict the dependent variable.

QUESTION 3 [1/1] In a regression model, the dependent variable is the variable being predicted, and the independent variable is the variable used to predict the dependent variable.

Answer: True. In a regression model, the dependent variable is the variable being predicted, and the independent variable is the variable used to predict the dependent variable.

QUESTION 4 [1/1] In a regression model, the dependent variable is the variable being predicted, and the independent variable is the variable used to predict the dependent variable.

Answer: True.

QUESTION 5 [1/1] In a regression model, the dependent variable is the variable being predicted, and the independent variable is the variable used to predict the dependent variable.

Answer: True. In a regression model, the dependent variable is the variable being predicted, and the independent variable is the variable used to predict the dependent variable.